Tho' Love and Song may fail, alas!
To keep Life's clouds away,
At least 'twill make them lighter pass,
Or gild them if they stay.

Let Love but gently touch the strings,
'Twill all be sweet again!

In the Enemy's Country After Guerrillas.

Graphic Picture of Real, Active Army Life.

First Brigade Reviewed by Gen. N. A. Miles.

(Special Dispatch to the Boston Journal.)
Headquarters Sixth Infantry, Wilderness, June 5.—We are in the enemy's country, three miles out, looking for Shaw's guerrillas, who are presumed to be in force some where in the maze and tangle of these dense woods.

Night is settling fast in its gloomy mantle of mist, and the camp fire glows redly and jollily, while the Rev. Frank T. Turpin, the only Sergeant of his kind the Lord has yet produced, turns our thoughts to those solemnities of our living of which we may be assured should any ghostly yellow jacket materialize through the thicket.

Bids us never leave our knapsacks behind, but to strap them bravely on our stomachs and move fearlessly on, knowing that he is behind us and will lead the retreat himself.

Then he closes with prayer and leads the singing—"For Company L is out today." The Sixth was at dinner. Col. Parsons was just polishing the washbone, when came the orderly from brigade headquarters: "Colonel, have your brigade in readiness to march within the hour—the enemy is in force on the Holliston road."

"Where?" Each officer springs to his feet, the quartermaster springs to the saddle and is off on the wings of the wind to the arsenal, to get up the baggage train. Ammunition, 40 rounds, shelter tents and blankets, stew pans and mess kettles, and a couple of fathoms for each man, short and crisp Hark to Adjutant's call, short and crisp his ringing from the trumpet bell.

Assembly sounding—Fall in! Men! and away we go out the main gate and down through the road 600 strong.

All Farmington is astounded. Far in advance of the main column marches a curious soldier with rifle at easy rest across his arm ready for an instantaneous pull on the trigger.

He's a most inquisitive individual, prying into everybody's secret, wanting to know of Farmer Jones what he's about, and where he is at, shooting a sis look from each eye at the same time down unmercifully straight his own horse to Gen. Miles.

The formation for review was battalion in line close in masses. The present to Gen. Miles came into play and were found to work to a charm.

With a real army picture as old soldiers have not seen since the days of the war was presented at our bivouac fires tonight. Really, there is quite a knack in starting a fire aright. Company L, pride of Boston in the Sixth, Capt. Williams, was high line. It got the first fire and the first coffee, and—put that's the Sergeant's story, let him tell it. Acting Chaplain Turpin, with that uncanny divinity, which is purely his own, had just been exhorting. When he came to a sudden parenthesis.

The coffee was boiling—"Clear as amber" declared the delighted and—"There was a squawk that electrified every soul in Company L. The bugler had struck a new note. From his breast fluttered a bird—could it be? Yes, it was—a fowl! A chick-e-e-n!

"Hus-s-h!" ejaculated that eloquent parson, as his right hand soared high above his head and his eyes were uplifted to heaven. But it was good, honest foraging with the hard coin of the realm. So Company L, got, too, the first broiler. Seven fires in all were lighted, the sod being turned up with spades and barked against the blaze, while the kettle rested upon a long gridiron frame.

Those Diamond Slippers Presented to a Dedham Lady.

An Interesting Scene at the Boston Theatre Yesterday.

"Fra Diavolo" at the Castle—"The Sphinx" Reception.

An event unprecedented in the history of theatrical performances transpired on the stage of the Boston Theatre at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, immediately following the regular "Trilby" matinee. It was an occasion looked forward to with eager anticipation by the ladies of Boston and the neighboring suburbs, an exhibition which amply justified the painstaking preparations of the projectors, and proved a tremendous success.

In a word, it was the champion "Trilby" diamond slipper competition, which for a fortnight past had been heralded in all the papers, and which had its inception in the fertile brain of Mr. James W. Morrissey, manager of the "Trilby" company now playing at the Boston Theatre.

The terms of the challenge were such as appeared directly to the public, for the proposition declared for an open contest, one that should be free to all, and in which the main question hinged not so much upon the size of the foot as upon its perfect proportions.

The moment the curtain fell on the last act of "Trilby," Mr. Washburn, stage manager for the company stepped forward to the footlights and briefly explained the conditions of the contest, at the same time inviting any and all ladies present to participate in the competition for the diamond slipper. Meanwhile the curtain had been rolled up, displaying the "Trilby" double scene, and steps were placed at either side of the stage for the competitors to ascend.

When Mr. Washburn finished speaking, "Trilby" herself (Miss Mabel Ambler), clad in her beautiful Grecian gown and leaning on the arm of Taffy (Mr. Carey), was seen to enter upon the scene from the wings. Following in their wake were little Billy, then the Laird, Mme. Vinard, Gecco and other members of the cast.

Their entrance on the stage was the signal for a loud prolonged outburst of applause from the audience, not one individual having left the auditorium. Then for a moment there was an embarrassing pause, while expectations were on tiptoe.

Soon, a petite demoiselle far back in the orchestra strode down the centre aisle amid a faint murmur of applause which gradually swelled into a loud huzzah as she ascended to the stage. Her example was immediately followed by a score of others, and they in turn by troops of ladies, tall and short, frail and robust, until it seemed as if there would not be room on the stage to accommodate them all. It was evident at once that their environment was altogether novel, but their numbers lent courage, and whatever embarrassment they felt at the outset it soon gave place to an eager desire for the test of pedal extremities.

"Trilby" occupied a big arm chair a few feet back of the footlights and each competitor in turn sat in a chair adjoining, where "Trilby," assisted by the judges, tried on the slipper. The gentleman selected to decide the question of superiority among the competitors were all well known and P. Bannister, Jr., John P. Hunt of New York, and Curtis, were present.

To "Trilby" was given the diamond slipper, and then in full view of the audience the competition was closed.

"Fra Diavolo" is being received with more favor than any of the operas so far produced at the Castle Square Theatre. It has costumes and scenery of remarkable beauty, and the company is giving a rapid presentation. Seats are selling rapidly, and ought to be secured in advance by those desiring good ones. The promenade concert in the foyer by a string orchestra before the performance and between the acts are a new feature that is much appreciated. The work of Mr. George Travenner in the title role is meeting with increased favor each night, and the marching of the chorus between the second and third acts is greeted with storms of applause.

During the day the company is busy rehearsing "Giroffo-Giroffo," which will be put on next Monday night for one week only. Mr. Ritchie Ling of Lillian Russell's company has been engaged by Mr. Rose to sing as follows: Giroffo-Giroffo, Miss Bissing; Aureo, Miss Galliard; Don Bolero d'Alcazar, Mr. Arthur Wooley; Mourouzo, Mr. William Wolf; Paquita, Miss Marie Muller; Belli, Pedro, Mr. Francis Galliard.

A pretty scene at Keith's New Theatre, this week is when the curtain rises on the specially furnished by Marion, Hayes and Marion. The trio are discovered just over the wall of a college, and are attired in the moribund cap and gown of the "undergrad." The stage is darkened, and a fine soft electric calcium light is thrown on the specialty. All then vault the fence and their speciality. That of neat dancing, begins. It is a very effective setting. Next week the Rossow Brothers, miniature Sandows, will appear.

MUSIC NOTES.
The Ariel Quartet will give a concert in Association Hall this evening.
An organ concert will be given this evening at 8 o'clock to celebrate the opening of the new organ of the Walnut Avenue Congregational Society (Walnut Avenue, corner Dale Street). Mr. E. E. Truette will be the Organist. Vocal selections will be given by Miss Agnes E. Snyder, Miss Lillian Carlsmith and the quartet of the church.
The Beth-Horon Male Quartet, W. H. Rose, first tenor; A. E. Hertz, second tenor; J. L. Blake, first bass, and A. H. McKee, second bass, managed by J. L. Blake of Orchard Street, West Somerville, has changed its name to the Beethoven Male Quartet. This club has sung in the past chiefly at Masonic gatherings; hereafter it will engage in general concert work.

ASKS FOR AN ACCOUNTING.

Mrs. Fannie D. Way Sued for $40,000 by Keystone Mining Company.

The bill in equity brought by the Keystone Hydraulic Mining Company v. Mrs. Fannie D. Way, executrix of the will of the late John M. Way, was called up yesterday in the Supreme Court, before Judge Knowlton, upon a plea filed against its maintenance by the defendant. The suit is brought to have the court order the defendant, as executrix of her husband's will, to account for $40,000, which he is alleged to have received in his lifetime from a sale of the mining property of the company while he was Vice President and Manager.

Mrs. Way was a lawyer of this city, quite well known among the members of the legal profession. He died in the year 1893, and was reputed to have left considerable property. In 1892, 1893 and 1894, when Mr. Way was a stockholder, the plaintiff alleges that it owned several mines in San Miguel county, Colorado. In these years the general management of the company is alleged to have been given to Mr. Way, who retained possession of the books until his death. It is alleged that he got $10,000 worth of gold by the operation of the mines, and is alleged not to have accounted for it. It is also alleged that he procured notes from his interlopers for that amount, and pay his interlopers for that amount, and introduced into the establishment of textile school hall-furniture, etc. Innumerable special acts conducted in place of general entertainment in scope of render such isolation unnecessary.

Resolved that the amount of business as conducted last year, is as follows:
Introduced
Killed
Passed
It would seem as though months of the session could be greater advantage while with introduction of new business to Committee of the Whole. In the routine business has been passed each day, and the calendar especially on such matters of interest as have been considered. Legislatures. There are a number of questions which every one which could be discussed in it at that time, and disposed of early or unfavorably, before business is introduced, and thought and time might be put off by showing the status of the matter in the earlier part of the year. This year the form of the petition which has been referred to a committee, for information and to the advantage of the public. Then, again, a reform bill year in not adjourning ball game, which it seems has been by the House of Commons in the example in not adjourning for several successful and satisfying sessions have been held, and is to be congratulated on its regular attendance. For the past A. M., and afternoon sessions House has worked with a petulance and now that your labors are close, I take great pleasure in this body at this time for their and thorough manner in which have been considered both in the House.

Our saying good-by to one be but sad when we realize majority of cases it breaks up relations and associations of never, in many instances, to yet as we part, let me join in wishing you one and all success.

Resolutions on Clerk McLaughlin.
Altho the conclusion of Speaker marks, Mr. Spring of Boston motions thanking Clerk McLaughlin in manner in which he has performed the present session. The duties the present session, as ordered by Mr. Bailey of Pittsfield, was adopted. Accompanying motion was a handsome set of works, which Mr. McLaughlin set to accept from the members of the floor, and made an appropriate response to the resolutions and felt additional gratification in the resolutions presented by the Boston.

We can't wholly prevent the formation of these products but we can destroy the danger that inheres in them by the frequent use of Platt's Chlorides, an effective antidote to all disease-breeding matter. This preparation has been many years on the market and its value is testified to by every hospital and charitable institution, and by a list of physicians which includes all the leading practitioners and sanitarians in the country. Platt's Chloride has no smell, is perfectly safe to handle and use, and so cheap that everybody can not only afford it but cannot afford to do without it. In the country, Platt's Chlorides helps the pa-patient and helps his doctor. It neutralizes all infectious influences and makes the air sweet and wholesome. It produces chemical cleanliness,—a condition beyond the reach of soap and water. Try it this season, and we shan't have to speak to you again.

NO NOON BLOW.

-The Reason Why. Everyone has been asking during the past week or so why the noon bell has not been rung. The man who is very particular about his watch keeping accurate time has paused in the street, as the hands on the church steeple clocks indicate that 12 M. is near at hand, and taken out his watch. He has waited in vain for the single blow on the fire alarm tappers and bells which is supposed to inform the public of the true standard time. The blow never came.

Why is the noon blow heard no more in Boston? It is because the fire alarm service is no longer located in the dome of City Hall, but has been removed to the Fire Department headquarters on Boston Street.

The Boston Fire Department has for many years had a contract with the Western Union Telegraph Company by which wire from the telegraph company's main office connected with the quarters of the fire alarm service in the dome of City Hall gave the standard time.

There is no similar wire connecting the new quarters of the fire alarm service in the Bristol Street building with the Western Union Company's office. Capt. Brown, of the Fire Department, Inspector of Wires for the Fire Department, told a Journal reporter yesterday that he had had several consultations with the Western Union Company in regard to this matter. The Western Union Company did not want to lay the wire at its own expense, but wanted the City to do so, and also desired the City to build an underground conduit to put the wire into.

Mr. Flanders said the City would not do this, but would insist on the telegraph company doing the work.

The controversy regarding the matter promises to continue for some time to come. In the meantime there will be no noon bell.

She carried no flowers, and instead of the customary coronet or orange blossoms, the long, flowing tulle veil was fastened in her hair by a diamond pin.

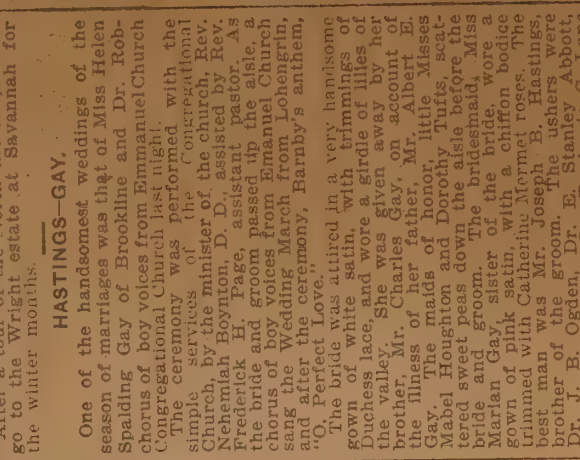

Just at the stroke of the noon hour the bridal party, headed by six ushers, entered the spacious parlor on the left of the window, and under a canopy of bay window, and under a canopy of a veritable bower, the happy couple were about to exchange vows, amid gasps of palms and blants,

The chancel and aisles of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, (Cambridgeport), were gallily decked with flowers and ferns last night, the occasion being the wedding of Miss Mary Rebecca Wells, second eldest daughter of Hon. Henry J. Wells of Cambridgeport, and Dr. Edwin P. Stickney of Arlington. The marriage service was performed by the rector, Rev. C. H. Perry, and the bride was given away by her father.

The bride was charmingly attired in white ivory satin, cut en traine, with waist of white muslin, long white tulle veil and carried white bridecroses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Lillian Bates and Miss Emma T. Bird of Cambridge, Miss Ruth G. Chase of Chicago, and Miss Annette Wellington of Arlington.

ETHEL AT

It was a better Legislature than the average—that can be said in all truth and justice of the one which last night took its final adjournment. Its session has been stained by no public scandals. It has manifested a good degree of diligence, and its decisions upon the important public measures which came before it have almost invariably been such as have commended themselves to the sound sense of the people of the Commonwealth. It has not been a brilliant body, and perhaps it is just as well that it has not, for brilliant Legislatures are sometimes apt to be dangerous. But it has had its full share of new, intricate and important business; it has given it sober and intelligent attention, and has satisfactorily disposed of it. On no large issue of widespread popular interest has it failed to meet popular expectation.

By all odds the chief measure which the General Court was called upon to deal with was the Metropolitan Water bill, which unfortunately was delayed until the last days of the session. But it had received very careful consideration in committee if it did not secure all the time which it really merited in the whole House. That it is judicious and adequate is the firm belief of those legislators who are most familiar with its provisions. Whether it is or not must soon be conclusively determined by practical experience. Next in relative importance comes the City Charter act, where the Legislature for the most part displayed a commendably progressive spirit, erring only in making the Mayor's term two years instead of three and neglecting to abolish the worse-than-superfluous Common Council. On the Subway amendments both Senate and House accurately executed the popular will, and the grade crossing restrictions, the Canals act changes and the authorizing of textile schools were all in the line of dis-junctively sound and progressive lawmaking. Altogether, the citizens of Massachusetts have cause to be gratified with the record of the session. There is no evidence of any deterioration in either the integrity or ability of our General Court. On the contrary, the past few years have furnished to candid observers indications of a genuine improvement. And it is worthy of remarking that the present Legislature managed to achieve an appreciable shortening of its term of sitting as compared with most of its recent predecessors. All honor to it for that.

FIVE IN ONE.

The recent trouble between Mexico and Guatemala, in which the smaller republic, though satisfied in the end, claims to have been unjustly treated entirely on account of its helplessness, and the indignity of Cortico which has aroused the whole Mexican people, have started anew speculations and movements aiming at the revision of the five States of Central America. There is in each of the small republics of surprise in this community. The Commissioners are again to be most cordially congratulated. The last possible compromise to their great work is removed, and they are now entirely free to proceed with it in accordance with the wishes of the immense majority of our citizens.

A TRIUMPH OF PROTECTION.

With cabins crowded with passengers, the great new American liner St. Louis put to sea from New York yesterday for Southampton. She begins her career under the brightest auspices. At least three-fourths and perhaps four-fifths of the travelers on business or pleasure bent between the United States and Europe are American citizens, and all of them would naturally prefer to sail under their country's flag, surrounded by the comforts and conveniences to which they have been accustomed. When the old Inman Company, which had passed into American ownership, decided to relinquish its generous British subsidies and to hoist the Stars and Stripes, its managers frankly said that they were not altogether moved by sentiment, that they believed that the Americanizing of their fleet would prove to be a good business transaction. It looks as if the results were certainly going to justify their confidence.

For more than half of the present century America monopolized the cream of the transatlantic passenger traffic. In the old days of the sailing packets the American ships were confessedly the finest, safest, fastest and best appointed. And when steam came in the swift and splendid vessels of the Collins Line handsomely sustained American supremacy. Up to 1868, practically all the record breakers on the Western ocean flew the Yankee ensign. About that time the scheming pro-slavery politicians in Congress discovered that, the small subsidies which the United States was paying, were dangerously increasing the power of the North, where nearly all our splendid fleet of mail steamships were constructed. So, with the eager aid of the dough-faces, they abrogated the contracts with Collins and other great American shipowners, killed our mail lines and transferred the monopoly of the Atlantic passenger trade to England.

That is how our maritime prestige was lost. For more than 30 years there had been no serious and sustained effort to regain it, until the fifty-first Congress—the "Czar Reed" Congress, Republican in both branches—enacted its Postal Aid law, re-establishing the prudent and patriotic policy of national recognition of our steamship interests, which the old slaveholders had struck down. That legislation of March 2, 1891, is the first step which made the building of the St. Louis possible. This grand ship is even more directly a product of the beneficent protective principle than the iron hulls of Pennsylvania or the woolen factories of Massachusetts. She is a most magnificent embodiment of the idea of encouraging home industry, and it is gratifying to find that she should

HE STILL HAD A VOICE.

The boy said his voice were not mates. That was evident the moment the former attempted to use the latter. The one was not quite a "5-foot boy," while the other would easily pass as a "4-foot voice." They both got on an alley 1-1/2 train at Congress Street, and the boy undertook to say something about having 5 o'clock papers to sell, whereupon the windows rattled and the car began to rock. The old man, who had jumped so high that his head nearly struck the roof, looked at the boy reproachfully for a moment, and then attempted to be humorous.

"A little louder, please," he said.

"Huh?" returned the boy inquiringly.

"Speak a little louder. Have you lost your voice?"

The other passengers laughed, and the boy seemed somewhat disconcerted.

"Paper," he asked going close to the man.

"No," replied the man, "I was merely wondering why you didn't speak out instead of whispering."

The boy was close to the man's ear by this time, and he let out a cry of "Evening papers," that fairly jarred the engineer.

He got to the door first, and the book that the old man threw after him merely raised a bump on the side of the conductor's head.

A FRIEND OF ST. PETER.

The late Dr. Vandell was fond of telling the following joke: A lady patient one morning greeted him with the remark: "Doctor I had such a singular dream about you last night." "Indeed? What was it?" "Why I dreamed that I died and went to heaven. I knocked at the golden gate and was answered by Peter, who asked my name and address and told the recording angel to bring his book. He had considerable difficulty in finding my name, and hesitated so long over the entry when he did find it that I was terribly afraid something was wrong; but he suddenly looked up and asked: 'What did you say your name was?' I told him again. 'Why,' said he, 'you have no business here. You're not due there ten or fifteen years yet.'"

"Well," said I, "Dr. Vandell said—'Oh, you're one of our Yandell's patients, are you? That accounts for it. Come right in! Come right in! That man's always upsetting our calculations in some way.'"

NOT A COMRADE.
The train had stopped for a few minutes and the man with the red face had taken advantage of the wait to rush into the station and get a sandwich that was very dry and a couple of apples that were very hard and very green.

"It isn't very inviting," he said, as he came back into the smoking-room and began to eat his luncheon. "But I've seen times when I'd have been mighty glad to get even this. Why, when I was imprisoned at Andersonville."

The man with the G. A. R. pin looked up at this and reached across to grasp the hand of the red-faced man.

"You, then, are one of those heroes that fought for the preservation of this glorious Union, one of those that suffered more than the pains of death in that rebel hell, you?"

Day of Many Addresses in Behalf of Societies.

Truly Favorable News From New England Department.

Oliver O. Howard of Burlington, Vt., Elected President.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 5.—The morning session of the Congregational Home Missionary Society was devoted to the auxiliaries of the church, with addresses by Rev. J. C. H. Merrill of Vermont, Rev. James Tompkins of Illinois, Rev. H. W. Carter of Wisconsin and Rev. A. L. Love of St. Louis, Mo.

Rev. O. H. Merrill, Secretary of the Vermont Auxiliary, said the characteristic feature of our missionary work of late has been the employment of young women to supplement the work of pastors. The new work, instead of diminishing the old, has increased it. Instead of our young women supplanting men, they have increased the demand. More men have been employed, at longer terms of service, and greatly increased results. Last year 50 men have worked in 52 fields. The work in Vermont is principally the country problem in an old State.

Woman's Meeting.

The 13th annual meeting of the Woman's Department was then held. Mrs. H. S. Caswell of New York, Secretary, presiding. In her annual address she stated that during the year there had been a steady growth along many lines of their work, and much intelligent study made of the great field before them. Notwithstanding the financial pressure, the Treasurer of the woman's organizations has yielded to the five national societies $94,367.78, of which $48,579.94 has been contributed to the Home Missionary Society. "The unions have furnished appropriations for work among the Boheimans and Scandinavians. This year," said Mrs. Caswell, "I must report for the first time in our history a loss instead of a gain in receipts, a loss of over $100 to the whole work. Two hundred and eighty societies have sent to our missionaries 680 boxes and packages, together with cash gifts aggregating in estimated value $46,265.70, while all work of this kind assigned and reported through the Woman's Department has been valued at $69,715.81.

There are $33,081 women in the Congregational Churches today, and the contribution per member for home missions during the year was 25 cents. She closed with an appeal for a more liberal contribution. Addresses were made by Miss Anna Hodoust of Pennsylvania, who spoke on "A Modern Miracle," Mrs. Joseph Cook of Massachusetts, on "Women's Club of National Interest," Mrs. Alice S. Barnes of Montana, "Work Among Montana Miners," and Miss M. Dean Moffatt of Oklahoma, "First Impressions of Oklahoma."

Dr. Boynton's Remarks.

Rev. George M. Boynton, D. D., of Boston, National Secretary of the Sunday School Publishing Society, said that the total expenditures of the society for the year, including everything, was a little less than $66,000. Adding to the years of service the time of field secretary, who does much missionary work, and half the time of the secretary, makes 30 years of labor expended on the missionary work during those 12 months. One-thirtieth of $66,000 is $2200. That amount then covers one-thirtieth of all work for the year.

"The Story of the Year" was the subject of the paper presented at the evening session, by Rev. William Kincaid, D. D., National Secretary, whose headquarters are in the Bible House, New York City. He said that the reports from New England's home missionary fields are jubilant in tone. Secretary Merrill of Vermont reports that the ingatherings have been large as compared with former years, so that today the number of organizations is larger than ever before, and the list of communicants is in excess of any reported for more than half a century. McGreggor of Rhode Island says: "For years past we have not had so bright a financial and spiritual outlook as during the last 12 months." Secretary Colt reports for Massachusetts that of the six churches that have assumed self-support in that State during the year, three are from the list of those that have been counted "permanents," 13,040 souls have been added to these home missionary churches during the year, and of these 13,040, 8693 united on confession of faith, a gain of 185 over last year, which was one of exceptional blessing in this respect, and a gain of 2085 over the report of five years ago. Moreover, 180,813 scholars, nearly 17,000 more than last year, have been gathered into the Sunday Schools of the home missionary churches, and the Gospel has been regularly preached at 4104 mission-stations, 174 more than a year ago.

Massachusetts and Illinois report laborers among French, Italian and Armenian, and Massachusetts, a successful mission among the Jews. The receipts of the society during the year just closed amounted only to $402,756. This is $24,000 less than the income for 1892-3, the year before the panic, and $108,000 less than the income for 1889-90, that is, the income of five years ago. The history of the Treasury shows that our ordinary receipts are on a constantly ascending scale, an annual increment of from $15,000 to $20,000.

But for two successive years the revenues have been more than $100,000 less than five years ago. This explains the present debt of $132,000.

Pittsburgs Win Their Fourth Straight Game From the Bostons. Opportunities were offered time and again for the Bostons to win their first game with the Pittsburgs on the South End grounds yesterday afternoon, but each time Frank Killen's pitching was too much for them. The best batsmen on the team had the chance of a lifetime in the ninth inning with the bases full and no one out, and yet only one run was scored. In the fourth inning McCarthy was on third and Nash on second with no one out and the next three men went out in order. The Pittsburgs won out by a lucky bunting of scratch doubles in the third inning. Nichols pitched a splendid game and was far steadier than Killen, but he had the hardest kind of luck. His support was well-nigh perfect. The fielders played intelligently for the batsmen, but on several occasions the ball was hit just when there was a large hole between the outfielders. A sharp and clean holding marked the work

JACK DOYLE IS CAPTAIN.

Brown Jumped Heavily on the Harvard Team. Cat and Mouse Game Up to Last Inning.

Crimson Wearers Were in Stamped Condition.

Little Enthusiasm Shown by the Small Crowd.

Harvard was disgracefully defeated by Brown yesterday afternoon. It was hard to see how Harvard had ever managed to defeat the Providence team, a few weeks ago by the score of 7 to 0. Yesterday she turned completely round and downed Harvard by the score of 14 to 6. Toward the end of the game Harvard played like a nine of schoolboys. If Harvard plays as she did yesterday the Yale fielders will have but little work to do.

The game, however, had one good point; it kept the interest up for six innings. As it was proved later, however, Brown was only fooling the Harvard men. The game would have been dull, indeed, had the Providence men exerted themselves at all. Brown just drew Harvard on slowly toward the ninth inning and then completely annihilated her.

Harvard entered the game with a crippled nine, but even that fact was no excuse for the exhibition of poor ball playing that the men gave. Capt. Whittmore was laid up and in his place at short Dean played. Dean did not make any errors, but he was terribly slow, and did absolutely nothing at the bat. He was worse than McVey, possibly, but he had been on the field for a long time, and yet he did not once do a thing on the batting list, and yet he did not once reach first base. The only batting he got from Harvard was that of Scannell, who reached third with no one out, and then reached fourth with no one out, and then reached even first base. This was a fair sample of Harvard's playing throughout. It must be said to her credit, however, that once Harvard did show signs of life, when in the sixth inning, when Brown slackened her pace a little, Harris, little spurt to make four runs. But this little spurt was soon forgotten when the Providence men started in again. All the time the column of base hits will tell where the game went. Harvard made six hits off White. Two of these were simple scratch hits, although Winslow managed to make two bases off a little fly that landed in front of the pitcher. Brown, on the other hand, had little difficulty in hitting the Harvard men very ill, and he ought never to have started to pitch. Paine slower than usual, direction, and was even, which included a strong batting and a thrashing. It was her strong batting and a thrashing. It was her strong batting and a thrashing.

BASE BALL NOTES. Gannon, a left-handed pitcher of the Erie club, has signed with Pittsburg. Jordan, the Pittsburghs' new pitcher, has joined the club. Mack thinks well of him. Manager George Davis of the Giants has concluded to "farm out" Pitcher Frank Knauss to the Bangor team. Eddie Burke's fielding and batting improve each day, and Bannon's destiny is to be a bench-warmer.-New York World. Third-baseman Mulvey has decided not to go to Syracuse. He will probably return to the Allentown, where he played last season. "Tom" Pettitt and Chief Engineer Gordon of the E. A. A. took in yesterday's game from a front row on the grand stand. "Tom" Tucker tried to sacrifice in the fourth inning. The ball went foul, and as it came off the bat gave him a nasty blow on the forehead. The Holy Cross College nine and the South Bostons, with Dowd in the box, will meet on the South End Grounds on the morning of June 17. EVIDENCE BEGUN.

Trial of Foley, Sullivan and Nagle for Murder-Prisoners for First Time Seem to Take Serious Interest-First Witness for the Government Has a Fainting Fit.

(Special Dispatch to the Boston Journal) Lowell, Mass., June 5.-The Government began to put in its evidence this morning in the Duroy S. Foster murder trial. For the first time since the opening of the trial all three of the defendants took a serious interest in the proceedings.

The Government called Frank H. Kendall, Civil Engineer for Middlesex county, for the first witness, to identify maps and explain locations. He had done this for 20 minutes, when he suddenly reeled and fell in a faint in the arms of District Attorney Wier. He was removed from the room, and was too ill to resume his testimony. All of the witnesses were then ordered from the room, excepting Medical Examiner John C. Irish of Lowell, who testified to the details of the autopsy.

Mr. Kendall, who had recovered, was then recalled. He testified that from Somerville to the scene of the murder the covered wagon would have gone a distance of 16-18 miles, and by the roundabout way in return would have gone 24-28 miles. In cross-examination the defense voted some time to bringing out the fact that the roads were hilly, with a view showing the difficulty of a mustang drawing a wagon and three men a distance of 41 miles in one night.

Somerville Police.

Dennis Kelley, Sergeant of Police in Somerville, was the third witness. He had talked with all three defendants before or after their arrest. He testified as follows: "Sullivan is married to Nagle's sister, and it is understood that Foley is married to Sullivan's sister. I had a conversation with Sullivan at the police station before his arrest. He said that he was hired as an

Question of Filling Office of Attorney General.

(Special Dispatch to the Boston Journal.)
Washington, June 5.—There was a decided stir among prominent Republicans in this city when it was learned this morning, on what appeared to be good authority, that Senator-elect Stephen B. Elkins had come out flatfooted for Mr. Harrison for the Presidential nomination, and that Mr. Depew had indorsed this position, saying that the ex-President would also be his first choice. For six months Mr. Elkins has studiously avoided saying who he thought should receive the nomination at the hands of the Republicans at the next national convention. Mr. Elkins has been content to evade this question by merely alluding to the record of Mr. Harrison in his past Administration and remarking that a Presidential candidate should not be picked out so long in advance.

Very many politicians have believed that the Senator-elect and multi-millionaire had hopeful aspirations for the nomination himself, and that he was placing himself in a position to be regarded favorably by the party throughout the country. The announcement of Mr. Elkins's positive declaration in favor of Mr. Harrison's candidacy is the more important in view of the position of the West Virginians in nominating Mr. Elkins played a prominent part in nominating Mr. Blaine in 1884, and in 1888, when it was seen that Mr. Blaine's nomination was hopeless, Mr. Elkins helped to turn the tide toward Mr. Harrison and cleverly manipulated the change in the convention. Among the Republicans are now a number who look upon Harrison as a harmonious dinner as simply that Mr. Elkins for long intended announcing the candidacy of Harrison, and

The Great and General Court Prorogued to Tuesday
Preceding First Wednesday in January.

The Great and General Court of Massachusetts is a thing of the past, in all human probability, for it was prorogued Wednesday night, and unless some unusual thing happens, will not be called together again. It was prorogued at 7.20 last evening, and its record for the year is briefly summed up in the information conveyed by the Secretary of the Commonwealth, to the effect that the Governor had during the session signed 504 acts, 127 resolves, vetoed 18 bills, allowed two to become laws by statutory limitation, withholding his signature, to which may be added the fact that he took no action upon three salary bills sent him in the closing hours of the session, by reason of which they fail to become laws. Last year the Governor signed 546 acts, 111 resolves, vetoed four bills, and withheld his signature from four.

The session has been one month shorter than last year, and practically the same amount of business has been transacted. More bills have been vetoed this year than before, within the memory of the oldest expended for travel nearly $3000 less than the committees of even a year ago. I would not be understood to commend this long established legislative custom. It is one that can be almost wholly dispensed with, to the advantage of the public Treasury and the speedier accomplishment of public business. The right of petition, by custom with us, involves the right of public committee hearings. Our committees hear matters with exceeding care and thoroughness, but it has occurred to me that we devote too much time to committee hearings. With all the criticism of the Legislature it should be understood that the fault of long sessions, if fault it be, not wholly rests with the General Court, but the people should take to themselves due share of responsibility, for with them rests the burden of introducing the public business early. I could not close my remarks and fail to express to the Clerk my acknowledgment of dependence upon him for his ever faithful services to the State at all arms and appointments to the most important positions of this State, and thoughfulness, to the Chaplain my veneration and respect. Follow citizens, our session is at an end. The record of our work is written by the pen of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, and must abide for commemoration by the people.

NEW CABLE CODE.

European Convention Decides on a Vocabulary of 250,000 Words-It Will Make Cabling Simpler.

New York, April 21.—A step that will cause almost a revolution in cabling has just been taken. It is nothing short of a new and general cable code, intended to be the sole authority on the legitimacy of code words, no other words to be received by the cable companies of the world. It has been prepared by the International Telegraph Convention, an organized body of Government representatives, which first met in 1875 at St. Petersburg, the idea being to fix rules and regulations for the interchange of telegraphic correspondence between the different European countries and to establish a central office, called the International Telegraph Bureau, to collect, arrange and publish information of all kinds relating to international telegraphy.

Much trouble was encountered in regulating the code, but it was finally agreed upon. The new vocabulary has reached this country, and Supt. George Chatterton, of the Commercial Cable Company, explained its purpose. The new vocabulary contains 250,000 words and makes a large vocabulary that contains more than 10 letters. Every word differs in at least two letters from every other word. While the American cable companies are not members of the convention or bureau that was prepared by the new vocabulary, they will be affected by it. The European Governments own the telegraph lines and belong to the convention, so that no American cable company can ignore the rules and regulations set down by the convention.

The American companies can charge what they please for messages over their own lines, but after the European Telegraphers' Convention has fixed charges, the Convention has fixed the code.

It is not absolutely certain that the new code will be adopted in this country," said George G. Ward, the vice president of the Telegraph and Cable Company, last night. "But if the countries of Europe use it, they may be pretty sure that we will be compelled to do so."

A convention is to be held in Buda Pesth in May, 1886, to settle the question as to whether the new code shall be extended to this country and others beyond the European limits. If that convention decides in favor of the extension, you may regard it as a settled thing. Under the present system the code has been very much abused by unscrupulous persons. We should charge for the code book only a little more than the actual cost of printing and binding. From the 250,000 words in business men will find it easy to select a number sufficient to form their new cipher without the slightest chance of giving a secret to anybody else. I am convinced that it will make cabling simpler.

Every one concerned will receive the usual three years' notice to make such arrangements as will enable him to adopt the new code without detriment to his business.

ALFRED CLAFFEY ARRESTED.

Supposed to Be the Man Who Has Been Brandishing a Revolver Frequently.

Alfred J. Claffey was arrested by an officer of Division 10 Sunday afternoon. He is thought to be the young man who has been threatening persons with a revolver. The police are of the opinion that he is the young man who entered Allen's, a Tremont Street drug store, on Saturday afternoon, and aimed a revolver at the head of the assistant clerk. He made his escape before assistance could be summoned.

Life is also supposed to be the man who placed a revolver at the head of some gentlemen while they were engaged in a game of checkers at the Young Men's Christian Association on Thursday evening last. At that place he also made a hasty exit. He has been recognized as an ex-convict of the Worcester Insane Asylum, and will probably be committed to some institution this morning.

THE REVENUE MARINE.

There are three United States revenue cutters in Boston Harbor—the Samuel Dexter, which belongs on this station, also the Woodbury from Eastport, and the Dallas from New York.

Drank the already famous "Bashos" beer, and they imbibed and absorbed all the ideas connected with the venture that appeared to have any real relation to its apparent success.

They came home full of enthusiasm. At the ministers' meeting they easily secured a practical indorsement of their idea. Then they went to business men and got financial indorsement. One man has offered to give $10,000 if a certain amount is raised. There are others pledged to the amount of $1000 each. So the way appears to be open to all the capital needed.

The ministers' meeting will be asked to resolve itself into a committee of the whole, and each member will be sent out to solicit funds of any capitalist with whom he has any influence. The subscriptions will be for stock, and on the expectation that the stock will pay a good dividend. As soon as $50,000 has been subscribed business will begin. This church saloon will imitate the existing saloon in pretty nearly every way except the selling of intoxicants.

The saloon will be run just the same as any other, save that no intoxicating liquors will be sold. It has not been decided yet whether it will be kept open Sundays or not.

At Wednesday's ministers' meeting Gus Wegfarth, proprietor of the famous Gold Dollar saloon, that is said to have cost $100,000 in outfit alone, offered the place for trying the experiment, and expressed his willingness to take $20,000 of the stock. The offer was taken under advisement.

COL. EBEN F. STONE.

Newburyport Turns Out in His Honor With Memorial Service.

(Special Dispatch to the Boston Journal.)

Newburyport, Mass., April 21.—The Unitarian Church this afternoon contained a large gathering of representative men of Newburyport, which included prominent banking and business men, City Government members, veterans of the Grand Army and Newburyport Artillery Company and persons of different societies of this city. The occasion was a memorial to the late Col. Eben F. Stone, for six years a Congressman from this district and one of the best citizens Newburyport ever had.

The man who was honored today was born Aug. 22, 1822, and died Jan. 22, 1885. He was a graduate of Harvard in 1843, studied law in the Cambridge Law School and commenced to practice in 1847. He was a member of the State Senate three terms, House four and was elected a member of Congress in 1880, 1882 and 1884, serving his district and constituency with a great degree of credit.

At the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion he enlisted as a private. He recruited a company here and was made its Captain and placed in command at the camp in Wenham. On the formation of the Forty-eighth Regiment he was placed at its head as Colonel and remained so until mustered out of service.

The exercises this afternoon began at 3 o'clock. Hon. E. P. Dodge, presiding, Prayer was offered by Rev. S. C. Beane, D. D., of the Unitarian Church, and a response by the choir followed. There was a brief address by the Chairman, Mr. Dodge, who spoke of the cause that brought the assemblage together, and alluded to the man whom Newburyport had ever delighted to honor.

The address of the day was by Hon. William D. Northend of Salem, a prominent member of the Essex Bar, with which Col. Stone was connected. Mr. Northend's address was eulogistic, and touched upon the career of the deceased; his service to his country and his neighbors; his connection with the Essex Bar, various banking and business institutions and his worth as a citizen, companion and neighbor. The address was much appreciated, and found ready response in the hearts of his auditors who had been associates of Mr. Stone. Letters were read from Hon. William L. Wilson, Hon. J. C. Catchings, Hon. Thomas J. Henderson, who were associated with Col. Stone in Congress, all testifying to the esteem in which he was held and to his ability as a statesman.

The exercises closed with the chanting by the Lord's Prayer and a benediction by Rev. Dr. Beane.
